FOIAb3b

Dana Durand, ff Official

CPYRGHT

E. Dana Durand, 88, a U. S 1935 until his retirement in Doctors Hospital. He lived a

The Washington Post B DANA DURAND

Tariff Commissioner from 1952, died yesterday at 3613 Norton place nw.

Described as "the classical ublic servant, the non-polit-al expert," Mr. Durand pent most of his 50 years of upper echelons.

A statistician by training, he as in turn a trust-buster under Theodore Roosevelt, a ensus Bureau director when le was 38, a World War I loover welfare aide, a Comnerce Department editor, and hief economist and then thember of the Tariff Com- 30s, with Canada.

tandard Oil:

"You're an able young man, Mr. Durand. You no doubt are doing what you consider your duty, but you don't realize how much harm you're doing in Friday at the Cleveland Park the world."

"Perhaps I was," Mr. Durand later mused.

For his extensive and novel use of IBM punchcards as Director of the 1910 census, Mr. Durand was the target of a $1 million patent suit brought y the inventor of the process. The suit was dropped. He was credited with forming the first public relations branch of a governmental department while at Census.

Two years of work with the U. S. Food Administration during World War I were followed by two as adviser to the food minister of Poland. Herbert Hoover brought his aide into the Commerce Deovernment service in the partment when he became its secretary.

Ostensibly appointed as a Republican to the Tariff Commission, Mr. Durand largely took the low tariff tack of the Democrats. His particular interest was reciprocal trade treaties and he helped nego trate the first of these in the

He was proud of these words f censure from John D. Washington and Encet of Cambookefeller, spoken during an cockefeller, spoken during an bridge; a daughter, Mary C. anti-trust action against Bancroft of Arlington; a brother and a sister here, G. Harrison Durand and Mrs. Henry W. Edgerton, and a brother in Boston, Albert Durand.

The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Congregational Church.